EDITOR LAWYER AT DEATH'S DOOR

George H. Punttenney, Pioneer of Rush County is Expected to Die Almost Momentarily.

MAY NOT LIVE THROUGH NIGHT

Has the Distinction of Being the First Mayor of Rushville— Civil War Veteran.

George H. Punttenney, editor, lawyer, first mayor of Rushville and pioneer of Rush county, is now at death's door and may not live many hours. His death has been expected almost hourly all day and it was thought this morning that he would not live during the day. The attending physicians have absolutely no hope for him. He has been lying in an almost unconscious state all day.

Mr. Punttenney has been in very poor health for the past few years. During the winter months he was able to be out only occasionally and then only for a short time. He has been suffering from the effects of an enlarged prostate, which will cause his death. The poisoning from the disease has practically infected his whole system and caused it to be run down. Other complications, which have not been serious, but which have necessarily tended to weaken his system, have arisen and all worked together to tear down his rugged constitution. About four o'clock this afternoon he was not expected to live much longer.

To Mr. Punttenney can be accorded the honor of being the first mayor of Rushville. He was the first man to be elected to that position after Rushville was incorporated as a city. Mr. Punttenney has directed his genius in many lines, having first entered the practice of law before entering the newspaper business.

Mr. Punttenney was born in this county May 26, 1832, and passed his seventy-eighth birthday last month. He received a common school education and then took advantage of all of the higher education which he could command. He attended school at the Fairview, Fayetteville and Richland academies. He was a student in the academy when the call for volunteers for the Civil war was sent out and he enlisted. He rose fast in the service and was classed as a sergeant-major when the war closed.

Following the war Mr. Punttenney entered the practice of law. He was admitted to the bar in 1866 and practiced here for several years when he gave up that profession for the newspaper game. He became editor of the Jacksonian in 1873 and continued in that capacity for over a quarter of a century. His work in that field will be best remembered by the older residents of Rushville.

LATER—Mr. Punttenney died shortly after four o'clock.

TROUBLE WAS RUMORED

But Arlington Young Couple Returned Home and Received Blessings.

Miss Minnie Jordon and Carl Rucker were secretly married at the Main Street Christian church parsonage Sunday afternoon at three o'clock by the Rev. R. W. Abberley. It was rumored that the bride's parents objected to the marriage and that there might be "something doing" when the couple arrived home. But all was quiet and the daughter was forgiven by her parents. Both are well known young people in Arlington.

C. H. & D. IS LAYING HEAVIER STEEL

Will Complete the Work as Far East as Glenwood Before Next Winter.

EXPENSE WILL BE VERY HEAVY

The C. H. & D. has just commenced a big job on the Indianapolis division which will necessitate the spending of considerable money by the company in the vicinity of Connersville this summer, says the Connersville Examiner. The road will replace all the steel of its main track with heavier rails. The present rails weigh seventy-five pounds to the yard, while the new steel will weigh ninety. The steel force began work at Hamilton last week and is gradually working its way toward Connersville. The new steel will be laid as far west as a point near Glenwood this summer. As soon as the steel force gets near enough its headquarters will be made in this city until the big job is completed.

POWDER COMPANY IS NOW AT WORK

New Smokeless Variety Being Manufactured by the New Concern at St. Paul.

THEIR FUTURE LOOKS BRIGHT

The Bell Powder company has commenced the manufacture of its product, and in the course of a few weeks, will be running at full capacity, or in other words will be manufacturing at least a thousand pounds of powder a day.

Experts who have tested the powder say it is among the best of its kind ever put on the market. From the fact that the company will manufacture and market it much cheaper than other smokeless powders, and that it is just as good if not better in many respects, it appears that the Bell people have a bright future before them.

Abe Martin says today: "Tell Binkley says his nephew, who married a prominent club woman out in Iowa, is mourned as dead. A set o' goat furs wuz stolen from th' ice cream parlor last night an' Constable Plum's hounds traced 'em t' th' livery stable, where he became confused."

The annual wheat crop of Great Britain amounts to about 400,000,000 bushels.

GOOD CROWD ON BIG WEDNESDAY

Larger Than Usual Number of People on Week Day and the Merchants do Business.

SPECIAL BARGAINS ATTRACT

Band Concert This Afternoon and One This Evening by the City Band.

"Big Wednesday" was about all that was ever said for it. The crowd this afternoon swelled to more than an ordinary week-day crowd although it would not hardly compare with a Saturday crowd. Band music was in the air this afternoon and will continue tonight. The weather man was very agreeable and according to his promise gave clear weather and warmer, too, for this afternoon, although the morning was very disagreeable.

The merchants report that their business was larger than it usually is on regular week days. The special inducements which they offered were sure to bring some people to the city. Scarcely a business man in the city failed to make a few sales on his bargain offering. Early this morning before nine o'clock, many of the clothing stores and dry goods stores had made several sales on their special articles which they offered at a cut rate for "Big Wednesday" only.

The Guy Stock company band gave a free concert on the court house lawn this afternoon from two until three o'clock. A large crowd was attracted by the music and remained until after the program was finished. The band is praised for being one of the best musical organizations which ever visited this city, although the number of pieces is not very large. They are able to play most any class of music in rare style.

An arrangement was made with the Stock company, which is here for a week's engagement, to give a concert on the street this afternoon, providing the concert by the local band would be cut short at eight-thirty o'clock to allow the crowd to attend the show tonight. The band concert by the city band will be given as advertised, on the band stand in the court house yard at seven-thirty tonight, but will be discontinued at eight-thirty on account of the agreement with the stock company.

Many of the merchants entered into the spirit of the occasion and attempted to make the day a gala one for Rushville. Many of the business houses were decorated for the special day, while a few others did not make any special decoration. It is thought that the "Big Wednesday" idea will be repeated several times during the summer. The farmers are especially rushed at present with their work as the weather has been decidedly against them. That reason was assigned by many for the cause of the crowd not being larger than it was.

The five cent theaters did their share of the business this afternoon, where there was probably the greatest activity. A ticket was given by all of the business men with each purchase, entitling the holder to free admission to all the theaters in the city for the matinee performance.

YOUNG BUSINESS MAN IS MISSING

Will A. McIlwain of Connersville Who Has Relatives Here, Strangely Absent From Home.

WAS LAST SEEN IN SOUTH BEND

Story of Foul Play is Given Most Credence—Last Heard of One Week Ago.

Will A. McIlwaine, step-son of Mrs. Mary McIlwain and step-brother of Mrs. Louis Neutzenhelzer of North Morgan street, is strangely missing from his home in Connersville and the members of his family are much alarmed over his continued absence. He was last seen in Richmond last Wednesday. The Connersville News says of the affair:

Besides conducting a cigar store and pool room in this city Will McIlwain was engaged as a traveling salesman for the Indianapolis Candy company. It was his custom to spend the first four or five days of each week on the road, returning every Friday night or earlier to his home and his business. He left last week as usual and should have been home by Saturday at the farthest.

During the week he wrote his wife that he was delayed for a day owing to a railroad wreck, but when he did not return Sunday and there was no word from him his wife became greatly worried. One cause for worry was the fact that he was always very considerate in writing home and advising his family of his whereabouts but up till today nothing has been heard from him and steps have been taken to locate him.

Mr. McIlwain was last seen to the knowledge of his family here in South Bend. Fred Smith of Richmond, and formerly of this city, met him at the Oliver hotel there last Wednesday evening. He is supposed to have gone from there to Michigan. The authorities at South Bend were communicated with yesterday but up until this time no word has been received indicating a trace of him.

One theory that is given probably the most credence is that he has been the victim of foul play. He was engaged in collecting accounts as well as selling merchandise and generally had considerable money in his possession. His family and many of his friends fear that this theory is all too true.

He was regarded by the Indianapolis Candy company as one of their very best salesmen and he was said to have been paid a handsome salary. Much of this, however, might have gone in an attempt to bolster up a losing business. He was a genial, whole-souled fellow and was very popular with his trade.

A representative of the Indianapolis Candy company was in the city today to ascertain something if possible of his whereabouts. Several times he desired to leave the road in order to devote all his time to his business.

WILL HOLD AN EXCHANGE

D. A. R.'s Will Raise Money For Reading And Rest Room.

The members of the local chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution will hold an exchange in the room at the corner of Main and Second streets, formerly occupied by Casady & Cox, Saturday in order to raise money for the reading rest room which they expect to open in a few days. Mrs. L. M. Sexton is chairman of the committee in charge of the exchange.

iness, but each time it is said the company gave him a raise in salary in order to retain him.

Mr. McIlwain's wife and two children are prostrated by his absence but are hoping that he will soon be located. Many of his friends are optimistic and believe that he will return shortly and explain his absence.

Will McIlwain was one of the most widely known citizens of Connersville. For many years he was employed by his uncle, the late J. M. Higgs, as city editor of the Examiner and in that capacity he came in contact with a large majority of the people. At one time he was engaged in the theatrical business and was always one of the headliners at the Elks minstrel shows. He was a member of Warren Lodge of Masons and Connersville lodge of Elks and those two orders are assisting in the search for him.

Mr. McIlwain's business house on Central avenue, above Fifth street, was closed this morning, pending his arrival or some word from him.

TRIPLER'S FATHER IN NAME MIX-UP

Most People Call Him "Jack McGwin" and Study Before They Say Walter Campbell.

IS A CASE OF LOST IDENTITY

"Jack McGwin" of Milroy father of the red-headed triplets born last Saturday night, is really Walter Campbell, says the Greensburg Democrat. His mother married a McGwin and he bears that name among all the townspeople.

While at Milroy Monday we carefully investigated the matter and several men called him "Jack McGwin," while none of them mentioned that his real name was Campbell.

It seems to be a case of lost identity through the use of the other name. When we called up Tuesday people had to stop and study before they were sure he had another name.

ATTEMPTS TO MAKE DRIVER "EAT DUST"

Richmond Levering of Cincinnati Meets With Accident When Auto Engine Breaks.

TRAVELING 65 MILES AN HOUR

While Richmond Levering of Cincinnati was driving his big automobile at the rate of sixty-five miles an hour toward this city from Indianapolis yesterday, the big engine suddenly broke into several pieces and the machine went "dead." The engine broke into a dozen pieces and the several parts were bent and twisted into almost every conceivable shape.

Mr. Levering was on his way to Cincinnati from Indianapolis and was attempting to make the colored driver of a large Packard auto following "eat his dust." The driver of the other machine did not like the taste of the dust and he was attempting to pass the big machine, hence the high rate of speed. The machine was pulled into the Worth & Bowen garage for repairs. It will require several days to put the parts together after they once arrive. The accident is a new one in automobile parlance. Mr. Levering was very much disappointed after the accident as he had planned to ship the machine to Long Island next week, where he will spend the summer. The machine is a big six-passenger Steven-Duryea with six cylinders.

MUCH EXPECTED OF TOURNAMENT

Best Professional and Amateur Shots Will Gather For Third Annual Gun Club Shoot.

TO BE HELD 2 DAYS NEXT WEEK

Local Sportsmen Gained Reputation For Entertaining and Expect to Uphold it This Year.

The members of the Rushville Gun and Country club are anxiously awaiting next Tuesday and Wednesday when they will give their third annual tournament. It is hoped and expected that the event this year will be greater than either one of the two previous ones. The shoot has come to be recognized as one of the best in the country and professionals as well as high amateurs flock here for the occasion.

It is expected as great a list of professionals and good amateurs will gather at the shoot this year as ever attended such an event in Indiana. Last year the event attracted all of the best shoots in the State, including the gunner who held the State record. Ed Voris, former mayor of Crawfordsville, who at one time held the State record, and who is now considered by many to be the best shot in the State, was here last year and will probably attend this year.

The good scores at the last shoot were numerous and many shooters came near chalking up a perfect score out of one hundred birds. The local shots figured some in the high scores. On one day of last year's event a member of the local club was near the top mark. The tournament this year is expected to be even more successful.

A feature of the tournament which was much more noticeable last year than at the first one, was the large attendance of women. They are especially invited to be present and witness the events. Benches are to be found over the grounds and spectators will be accommodated with seats on the veranda of the club house or on the interior of the house.

The members of the local club have been highly praised for their proclivities for entertaining and they expect to uphold their reputation this year. Every accommodation will be accorded visiting sportsmen. A cab line will be run from the city to the grounds so that the shooters may go and come at any time they wish. The shooting begins each morning at ten o'clock and continues until the program is finished. No time is taken out for lunch as dinner will be served in the club house.

TO LET CONTRACT ON NEXT TUESDAY

County Commissioners Will Meet on Next Tuesday to Receive Bids on Street Paving.

MAY BEGIN SOON AFTERWARD

Tuesday, June the seventh, one week from yesterday, the county commissioners will meet in special session to receive bids for the paving of Main and Second streets under the three-mile gravel road law. At that time the contract will be awarded providing any bids are received which fill the requirements. The improvement was ordered on Saturday, May 7, by the county commissioners after one of the longest legal battles ever fought out in the local courts. It is probable that the work will be started soon after the contract is awarded.

POLITICAL ROW NOW PROMISED

Tom Johnson to Attack Harmon in Ohio.

TO COPY THE MARSHAL PLAN

Incited Thereto by W. J. Bryan, Cleveland's Former Fighting Mayor Will Demand That Ohio Democracy in State Convention Name the Party's Candidate for United States Senator, Following the Indiana Plan.

New York, June 1.—The Ohio Democratic state convention is to be held at Dayton on June 21 and 22. Governor Judson Harmon is to be renominated, but as an aftermath to the dinner at the Hotel Astor in New York on Monday evening to former Mayor Tom L. Johnson of Cleveland, the convention, which hitherto promised to be serene and harmonious, is to be the scene of turbulent dissension. William J. Bryan having taken Governor Harmon to task and insisting that the Democratic candidate for United States senator should be named by the convention, and Governor Harmon demurring to Bryan's program, former Mayor Johnson, still in town, has made it known to his friends that he had joined hands with Bryan in the contention and would go to Dayton at the head of the Cuyahoga county (Cleveland) delegation and insist that the Democratic candidate for United States senator be named by the convention. There was considerable surprise at the new alliance which Johnson has formed with Bryan, Mr. Johnson admitting that he had discussed the naming of the Democratic senator in the Ohio convention with Mr. Bryan before the latter left for Europe.

Bryan told Johnson that he was to make the same war in Ohio that he did in Indiana when he urged Governor Marshall of the Hoosier state to compel the state convention to name the candidate for United States senator. Tom Taggart was opposed to the Bryan-Marshall program, but Taggart was beaten and John W. Kern, the vice presidential candidate with Bryan on the ticket in 1908, was named by the Indiana convention.

Now Bryan and Johnson have joined hands in the effort to compel Governor Harmon and Harmon's friends in the approaching Dayton convention to do likewise. Bryan and Johnson, it was authoritatively stated, are not to oppose Governor Harmon's renomination at Dayton three weeks from now. They are to confine their political fight against Governor Harmon to the plan that the Democratic senator to be voted for in the legislature at Columbus next winter to succeed Senator Charles Dick, Republican, shall be named by the convention. The present legislature is thirty-one Republican on joint ballot.

MUCH PORK LEFT IN RIVERS AND HARBORS

Committee Did Not Eliminate All Suspicious Items.

Washington, June 1.—The conference committee of the senate and house on the rivers and harbors bill has agreed on that measure. Most of the propositions which were objected to by Senator Burton of Ohio on the ground that they had never been recommended by engineers, were dropped from the bill. These are the items that aroused President Taft's suspicions of the bill and that led to reports that the president might veto the measure. There are, however, some good-sized pieces of pork still in the bill. The lake-to-gulf deep waterway proposition, involving $1,000,000 in the present bill and committing the government to the expenditure of many millions more, still remains. One or two other propositions that originated in the house which had never been recommended by engineers also remain in the bill, and there is still considerable speculation as to the president's attitude toward the measure. It is certain that the conference report will meet with a good deal of opposition in the senate and possibly in the house. The total carried by the bill as reported is $51,947,718.

TRIED IT AGAIN

This Man Did Not Profit by His Initial Experience.

New York, June 1.—Frederick Lousier of Harrisburg, Pa., caused the arrest here of a man who said he was John Hartman, a salesman, on a charge of engineering a wire-tapping game by which Lousier lost $12,000. The Harrisburg man says he dropped $10,000 to the wire-tappers on April 18; went home, scraped together $2,000 more, came back and dropped at in the same place.

BUICK MODEL 10

June 19th

Was the day Louis Chevrolet got his Buick car all harnessed up. Loco, Knox, Stoddard, Apperson, Fiat and other cars were racing for the big Cobe Cup. Bill Mead timed Chevrolet a mile a minute, they say, with his Buick; all other cars he passed. Cyrus joined the crowd as they called aloud. Chevrolet made the grand-stand gasp. The women hollowed, "Chevrolet's won," and the crowd yelled out as one, "I love my horse and wagon, but oh you Buick Car."

The Badge of Honesty

Is on every wrapper of Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery because a full list of ingredients composing it is printed there in plain English. More than forty years of experience has proven its superior worth as a blood-purifier and invigorating tonic, the cure of stomach disorders and all liver ills. It builds up the run-down system as no other tonic can in which alcohol is used. The active medicinal principles of native roots such as Golden Seal and Queen's root, Stone root and Mandrake root, Bloodroot and Black Cherrybark are extracted and preserved by the use of chemically pure, triple-refined glycerine.

Send to Dr. R. V. Pierce at Buffalo, N. Y., for free booklet which quotes extracts from well-recognized medical authorities such as Drs. Bartholow, King, Scudder, Coc, Ellingwood and a host of others, showing that these roots can be depended upon for their curative action in all weak states of the stomach, accompanied by indigestion or dyspepsia as well as in all bilious or liver complaints and in all "wasting diseases" where there is loss of flesh and gradual running down of the strength and system.

The "Golden Medical Discovery" makes rich, pure blood and so invigorates and regulates the stomach, liver and bowels, and through them, the whole system. Thus all skin affections, blotches, pimples and eruptions as well as scrofulous swellings and old open running sores or ulcers are cured and healed.

In treating old running sores, or ulcers, it is well to insure their healing by applying to them Dr. Pierce's All-Healing Salve. If your druggist don't happen to have this Salve in stock, send fifty cents in postage stamps to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y., and a large box of the "All-Healing Salve" will reach you by return post.

You can't afford to accept a secret nostrum as a substitute for this non-alcoholic, medicine of known composition, not even though the urgent dealer may thereby make a little bigger profit. Though he offers the substitute for a less price you can't afford to experiment with your health. Go where they give you what you ask for without argument.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels. Sugar-coated, tiny granules, easy to take as candy.

LARGER NUMBER IN LARGE CITIES

Census Report Shows That Roman Catholics Are in Majority in Big Places.

32,936,445 CHURCH MEMBERS

Protestants Are More Evidence in Small Towns and Have Greatest Following.

Washington, D. C., June 1.—The aggregate number of 32,936,445 communicants or members of all religious denominations in continental United States was reported for 1906, according to the United States Census of Religious Bodies for the same year, as detailed in part of the United States Census Bureau's special report on the subject, now in press. Of this grand total the various Protestant bodies reported 20, 287,742 and the Roman Catholic church 12, 679,142.

For purposes of comparison the census authorities divided the principal cities into four classes, those having in 1900 a population of 300,000 and over, constituting the first class; those of from 100,000 to 300,000 forming the second; those of from 50,000 to 100,000 making the third; and those of from 25,000 to 50,000 forming the fourth class.

Of the Protestant aggregate there were 1,478,145 or 7.3 per cent. in the first class cities; 4.7 per cent. in the second; 7.4 per cent. in the third and fourth classes combined, while 80.6 per cent were outside the principal cities.

Of the Roman Catholic church's total membership there were 3,375,453 or 27.9 per cent in first class cities; 1,361,132 or 11.3 per cent. in the second; 1,570,944 or 13 per cent. in the third and fourth classes combined; with 5,771,613 or 47.8 per cent. outside the principal cities. It is seen, therefore, that the number of members of the Roman Catholic church reported in cities of the first class was considerably more than double the number reported by all the Protestant bodies, while outside of the principal cities the number reported by the Catholics was only a little over one third of the number credited to the Protestants. It is pointed out in the report that the strength of the Protestant bodies, as compared with the Roman Catholic church is greatly understated.

Only two of the Protestant bodies reported a majority of their membership in the principal cities, i. e., the Church of Christ, Scientist, 82.6 per cent. and the Protestant Episcopal Church 51.2 per cent; while of the membership of the Jewish Congregations, 88.7 per cent are in the principal cities, and of the Eastern Orthodox churches 70.7 per cent.

Of the total number of communicants or members reported for the principal cities by all denominations, 6,307,529 or 60 per cent. belonged to the Roman Catholic Church, and 3,935,341, or 37.4, to Protestant bodies.

Comparison with the report for 1890 shows that in general there has been an increase in the proportion of communicants or members in the principal cities as compared with those outside of these cities. In 1906 the percentage of the total number of communicants in these cities for all denominations was 31.9 as compared with 25.7 in 1890.

Of the total number, 10,511,178, of communicants or members in the principal cities in 1906, there were 7,343,403 or 69.9 per cent. reported by the 38 cities of over 100,000 population, and, of these, 2,432,630 or 33.1 per cent, belonged to Protestant bodies and 4,736,535 or 64.5 per cent. to the Roman Catholic church. The latter denomination had in these cities about 75.1 per cent. of its entire membership in cities of over 25,000 inhabitants.

In thirteen of the cities more than one-half of the communicants or members reported belonged to Protestant bodies, while in 23 the majority belonged to the Roman Catholic church.

The cities showing the largest protestant communicants are Memphis, 84.4 per cent; Toledo, 70 per cent; Washington, 66.9 per cent; Kansas City, Mo., 66.2 per cent; and Indianapolis, 62.1 per cent.

The cities showing the largest percentage of Roman Catholic communicants are Fall River, 86.5 per cent; San Francisco, 81.1 per cent; New Orleans, 79.7 per cent; New York, 76.9 per cent; Providence 76.5 per cent; St. Louis, 69 per cent; Boston, 68.7 per cent; Chicago, 68.2 per cent; and Philadelphia, 51.8 per cent.

In the 5 leading cities the proportion of communicants to population was; New York, 44.7 per cent; Chicago, 40.70; Philadelphia, 38.8; Boston 62.6; and St. Louis, 46.6 per cent. It is stated that, in general, cities which have a relatively large Roman Catholic population show a higher percentage of church members than cities in which this body has a comparatively small representation.

In Fall River 86.5 per cent. of the total number of members reported were Roman Catholics and the church membership represented 67.8 per cent of the population, while in Memphis, where 84.4 per cent of the communicants reported belonged to Protestant bodies, the church membership was only 30 per cent of the population.

IN A DEADLOCK FOR ONE MONTH

Indiana Operators and Miners Still Far Apart.

RIGHT TO STRIKE BIG ISSUE

The Old Question of the Miners' Right to Wield the Big Stick Is the Chief Bone of Contention in the Struggle Which Began Four Weeks Ago Today and Which Apparently Is Still Far From Settlement.

Terre Haute, Ind., June 1.—The joint scale committee of Indiana miners and operators is deadlocked. The committee began work on a contract four weeks ago today. It is understood that if two clauses were disposed of the remaining fifty or sixty could be agreed to in short order. The two in contention involve the old question of the miners' use of the big stick, the right of striking.

The operators are contending that the basic idea of wage contracts is to have operations continue, whatever may be the grievance, and that the disputes be fought out while work continues. One clause is that which imposes a fine of $1 a day on the men for going on a strike without first submitting the grievance to arbitration. This has been in the contract for several years, but the men wish it eliminated. The operators say that perhaps not a majority of the steady working miners desire it eliminated; that in fact they wish it continued to prevent them being forced into idleness occasionally when some leaders are anxious to swing the big stick. The other clause is the one which provides for a strike if a settlement of a grievance is not effected within five days after it has been taken up. The men contend that superintendents and other mine officials have a habit of letting a grievance drag until its settlement is not important.

The operators point to six stampede strikes since the temporary agreement was reached four weeks ago and under which the firing clause is not effective, more of such strikes than in a year preceding. In each instance the strike lasted only one day, and the grievance was easily settled. The strong point urged in behalf of eliminating the fine is that men should not be penalized for refusing to work when danger conditions exist in a mine, but the operators say that in none of the six strikes was the danger question at issue.

In one place it was about the manner in which a death benefit of $25 should be paid. In another a company bank check was refused and cash demanded for the amount of dues for the organization the company had retained from the pay of the organization's members. Another was where the men did not wish a certain man to drive a mule, making him an offer to work as a miner, which he refused.

CHANGE DATE OF THE CONVENTION

National Republican League Will Hold Biennial Session in New York June, 24-25.

PRESIDENT TAFT WILL SPEAK

Will be Looked Forward to With Great Interest as he is Expected to Sound Keynote.

Washington, D. C., June 1.—In order that President Taft may attend its sessions, the Executive Committee of the National Republican League has changed the dates of the biennial convention of the League from June 28-29 to June 24-25. The convention will be held at Carnegie Hall, New York City, on those dates. The President has accepted the invitation extended by John Hays Hammond, President of the League, and agreed to make a speech, which will sound the keynote of the League's campaign for the fall elections. The President's speech will be looked forward to with great interest, as it is expected that it will not only be the battle cry of the officers of the League for the fall campaign, but will also set a pace to be followed by the general campaigners. Besides the President, there will be present Vice-President Sherman, at least 15 Republican governors, a number of Senators and Representatives, and delegates, including prominent Republicans from all over the country.

The convention will be the first political convention to be held in New York since 1888 and promises to be the largest ever held in the metropolis. On the evening of June 25 a banquet will be given at the Hotel Astor, at which President Taft, Vice-President Sherman, and other leaders of the Republican party will speak. It is expected that the banquet will be a record-breaking one, both as to its size and the prominence of the diners. Headquarters will be established at the Hotel Astor on June 15, in charge of Secretary pro tem. D. B. Atherton and his corps of assistants, where a committee on reception to delegates will also be in attendance.

A special feature of the convention will be an appeal to the first voters and the foreigners who have become citizens of the country since the last election. This feature has always been a leading policy of the League, and it is the intention of President Hammond and the officers of the League to redouble their efforts to get these two factors out at the polls. Clubs will be organized in addition to the regular League clubs to look after the interests of the League during the campaign and to organize effectively for the Presidential campaign of 1912.

Mr. Atherton said: "I feel very much encouraged as the result of letters and telegrams that I am receiving from all parts of the country praising our movements. These telegrams come from governors, from Senators and Representatives, and from presidents and officers of different State clubs, showing us that we will not only have a record-breaking crowd at the New York convention, but that it will exceed in enthusiasm any convention the League has ever held, I believe the League's influence will be a prominent factor in the coming elections, also in the national election."

If your Stomach, Heart, or Kidney are weak, try at least, a few doses only of Dr. Shoop's Restorative. In five or ten days only, the result will surprise you. A few cents will cover the cost. And here is why help comes so quickly. Dr. Shoop doesn't drug the Stomach, nor stimulate the Heart or Kidneys. Dr. Shoop's Restorative goes directly to the weak and failing nerves. Each organ has its own controlling nerves. When these nerves fail, the depending organs must of necessity falter. This plain, yet vital truth, clearly tells why Dr. Shoop's Restorative is so universally successful. Its success is leading druggists everywhere to give it universal preference. A test will surely tell. Sold by F. E. Wolcott.

Wednesday, June 1, 1910.

In an admirable address delivered at a banquet of the Indianapolis Commercial club on Wednesday evening, former Vice President Fairbanks called attention to the importance of the local problems that confronts every municipality, and said, very truly, that our interest in public affairs should begin in our own community and widen, rather than begin at the broad horizon of national affairs and contract that public questions grow in importance as they come near home.

Fairness Both Ways.

(Grenfield Reporter.)

The enforcement of law against the speeding of automobiles over streets and country highways may be unpopular with many owners of machines, but it should have no defense from fair minded citizens. It is useless to be prejudiced against motor machines. They supply a demand of the people for rapid transit on the public highways and can no more be eliminated from the life and business of the people than the telephones, street cars and railroad trains of the country. They have come to stay, and the only thing left for the public to do, is to regulate and control their use so that the greatest good can be derived from them consistent with the safety of the public. There is generally more or less conflict and complaint of anything in the way of an innovation. These gradually disappear as the use becomes more common. There was great prejudice against the bicycle, and many horses and people were slow to become reconciled to them on the highway, as they are now with the auto. The bicycle, however, has become so common that it is given a place on the highway as freely as is a man on horseback. The same will be the case with the automobile in the course of time, but in the meantime officers must rigidly enforce the law against violators of speed regulations in order that the lives of the people may be as carefully guarded and protected as possible. There is no doubt but that many persons who should not be allowed to control and operate automobiles, do drive them, and it is from the recklessness of such drivers that so much trouble results, but arrests, conviction and heavy penalties will have the desired effect upon them.

Temperance Lecturer

OLIVER W. STEWART.

Hon. Oliver W. Stewart, who lectures on "The Liquor Problem" at the Main Street Christian church Friday evening, is one of the leading temperance orators on the American platform. He represented the Hyde park district of Chicago in the Illinois legislature and was recognized as the finest speaker in the assembly. The Chicago Chronicle said of him: "The honors in speech-making went to Representative O. M. Stewart. In the opinion of many of the oldest members a more eloquent address has not been made in Representatives' Hall in years."

Mr. Stewart is touring Indiana in the interest of the American Temperance Board of the Christian Church. He has already spoken in the great churches at Anderson, Connersville, Columbus, Valparaiso, Wabash and many other places. It's an opportunity to hear a great lecture free from a prince of platform men. The church should be crowded Friday night.

Value of the Peanut

The man who buys 5 cents worth of peanuts perhaps doesn't realize that his purchase is helpful to build up one of the largest farm products in this country, now worth some $15,000,000 annually. The thin covering is very like wheat bran and is excellent food for live stock when mixed with other things. The shells are burned in the factories as fuel and the ashes are used for fertilizer. The vines make fine storage. The peanuts that are not sold on the market are ground up into butter and into meal which is used in the manufacture of confections of various kinds. But oil is the most highly prized by product of the peanut, of which a bushel will yield about a gallon.

High Cost of Living in The Good Old, Rare Old Days

A Few Clipping From a Pioneer's Record Back In 1800 When They Paid $1.50 a Bushel For Corn and Worked for 37 cents a Day.

Choosing at random one of those "insurgent" papers the other day such wages as these were found advertised, says the Marion Chronicle: Steam hammer men, $5 to $20 a day; die sinkers, 50 cents to 75 cents an hour; blacksmiths, $3.75 to $4 a day; and others in like ratios. Verily this modern prosperity, backed by "robber tariff," doth bring hardship to the laboring man. How often we long for those glorious days of the early 1800's when men worked harder and received less and then paid more than 12 cents a pound for the cheapest grade of sugar.

Two old books, worn with age, tell plainly in goose-quill shadings of those early days. These books were written by a Quaker pioneer in Pennsylvania, for the most part, and were completed in Huntington county, Indiana; and they are the accounts of his own personal expenses and contracts as well as the accounts of others in their dealings with him. They are now in the library of a Grant county home.

One of the books dates back to 1812. At that time he sets forth the assurance that he spent one day "barking myself" and got 48 cents for the work. Now, from what can be learned of that time, it is almost certain that this worthy progenitor did not actually skin his shins or otherwise wound himself. "Barking" was the simple process of skinning tan bark from trees. It was hard work.

In the same year the writer sets forth this enlightenment: "To myself one day making fence, 35 cents." "Barking" thus was much more difficult than building a fence. And again he says in that glorious year of 1812, "planting corn, 37½ cents." At another he sheared sheep for 48 cents a day. At no time were wages more than 48 cents per diem, and at one time, as his records show, he made an annual contract, working the whole year for $100. When he settled at the end of the year he had been unable to work for so many days that he got only about $80. And this was in a more recent year, about 1820.

A man now works from eight to ten hours. He gets from $1.50 to $5 a day for his work. The "insurgent" newspaper's advertisement would indicate that he gets more than that, but we will be conservative. And how about prices now and then?

To determine this question we have the same accounts, reaching over the same years as those covered by the wages given. Going back to the year 1814 we find that he paid $1.20 a bushel for six bushels of rye. Here are his words: "To six bushels of rye, at $1.20 a bushel, $7.20." He also, in this same year says: "To two earthen pots, 50 cents." And again: "One-half bushel potatoes, 31 cents." There is many a farmer nowadays that would like to sell the "high-cost-of-living" advocate any number of bushels at half that rate.

But potatoes were not the only things mentioned, and potatoes then were cheaper than most commodities. Notice the methodical manner of setting forth this item: "One bushel of Indian corn, $1.50." How careful the writer was to say that it was "Indian corn." "Corn" is as much corn today as "Pigs is pigs."

Here is another item, entered under the date of 1816, that is a whole story in itself: "To sweeping brush, 37½ cents." Sweeping brush! That was before the days of broom corn. Aged persons say that a sweeping broom was the art of the luxurious idle hours about the fire place. When it rained and was too inclement for exposure to the mosquitoes out of doors, your noble ancestor lounged about the fire and needing recreation from such monotonous exercises and diversions as gathering tan bark or chopping down sapplings of eight-foot girth he gave his attention to making sweeping brushes. These were manufactured with a knife and much muscle, to say nothing of the important three or four inch hickory stick. The knife was sunk to a depth of a quarter inch into the white of the hickory stick, and then the shaving thus started was peeled down the stick to proper length. When these shavings were peeled until nothing remained, they were tied in a bunch, another stick was attached, and the good housewife had her broom. After you had made one of these, you had a piece of household furniture that sold for 37½ cents. If hickory only were abundant in these later degenerated days, perhaps some of the $3 or $4 a day blacksmiths could find a less paying employment.

Then take the year 1815. One of the first items is: "To one bushel of salt, $1.00." That is a very good price for salt, and sometimes it could not be had for any price. There were days and days on the frontier when the pioneers ate meat and fish with no salt at all. Then comes another interesting item: "One bushel of wheat, $2.00." At 48 cents a day it is no difficult mathematical task to find out how many days one man would have to work for a bushel of wheat.

In the year 1818 a number of especially interesting figures are given. One of the first items under this date is: "Boarding William Wilson three and one-half days at 25 cents a day." At 48 cents a day William Wilson would not have had much margin, and if he worked on a salary of $100 a year and was docked for the days he did not work, it may be that when he skipped his board bill he made his escape in a barrel or an apparel of some of his own tan bark. But then the methodical journalist has not let us into these secrets, and the only presumption that can be drawn from his statements is that at the price of Indiana corn and wheat there was not much profit after the good housewife had pounded out her dough for her Dutch oven. Boarding in those days must have been a failure from almost any viewpoint whether it be considered in sympathy with the landlord, his wife or the boarder.

Going further into that year of 1818 we find the fact recorded that two quarts of small onions cost 15½ cents. Today, on account of the high cost of living, they cost 5 cents a quart. Again, it is shown that the keeper of the journal paid 45 cents for one peck of Indian seed corn and that he bought one bushel of seed buckwheat for $1.50.

A real sold for very cheap rates. The price of meat in those days was measured by the rifle and a steady hand. Tallow, however, sold for figures that would be exorbitant now, and there was no such thing as tariff then. Hides were sold at a low figure. The price of hides was regulated by the cost of powder and lead. It was the grain, the clothing, sugar and similar things that were expensive. The things the forest furnished were every man's whether it was tan bark, venison or malaria. The journal shows that our methodical friend, in some spirit of bravado, once paid $4 a yard for broadcloth. How much the tailor's bill was is not recorded.

In one of the journals printed in odd-type and language of the sea, is an old clipping, an advertisement of the sailing schedules of certain vessels. The advertisement says that certain ships, of certain classes, are at certain docks at Philadelphia. One man assures the homesick pioneer that his ships are copper-fastened, an assurance against the salts of the barrier of sea, and that they are in command of men of experience. To the irony of this he adds yet another sting by saying that his vessels will connect at Cowes with smaller craft, which will take the pioneer safely to the continent.

Perhaps, while whittling the tough fiber of a white hickory stick, fashioning it into clumsy brooms, the pioneer you envy dreamed his dreams of the relatives and friends across the water and longed for a sight of Cowes and the cities of Old England. And why not?

Obituary.

Minnie Louise Martin was born June 24, 1909, and died May 29, 1910. One of the saddest and most effective messages that has been received here for quite a while was that on last Monday morning telling of the death of little Minnie Louise, the bright little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Martin which occurred Sunday evening at seven o'clock. She had been ill for the last four months with a slight attack of brain trouble. And alas, the angel of death was not far distant and her condition gradually grew worse, but nothing foretold what was soon to come. Kind, patient and loving hands with medical skill did all in their power to stay the disease of the little sufferer, but it was all in vain.

Power Over Liquor Shipments

A bill now before congress but which is not likely to pass at this session, is likely to cut a figure in the coming election throughout the country. The bill is non-partisan and is favored by many southern Democratic members of congress as well as by many Republican members. The bill is the one which gives states police powers over liquor shipments from other states as soon as they cross the state lines. A Washington dispatch says:

"S. E. Nicholson, legislative agent of the National Anti-Saloon League, announced today that the league had forwarded to the superintendent of the state league for Indiana copies of the bill giving the states control over interstate shipments of liquor with the request that he ask every nominee for congress in the state whether he will vote for this bill if elected. This is the latest step taken in the country-wide movements started by the Anti-Saloon League to obtain this federal temperance legislation. Mr. Nicholson says that the influence of the league will be used against any candidate who refuses to say he will vote for the bill in case he is elected."

It will be noticed in the report published in the News yesterday of the platform pledges, in the Ninth District where Edward E. Neal was nominated, this measure was sanction and pledges given for its support.

AMUSEMENTS

A crowded tent full of people witnessed the Guy Stock company play "St. Elmo" last night in a creditable manner. They will put on tonight, "Bar-Ze-Ranch," the only farce comedy of the week's stand. The play tonight is said to abound with fun and amusement and to be rich with real humor. Arrangement has been made so that the show will not begin tonight until 8:30 o'clock as the band concert to be given by the Rushville band will not be discontinued until that time. The company's band attracts a large crowd twice daily when a concert is given at the corner of Main and Second streets every noon and every evening at seven o'clock.

The Star Grand theater will present the same Biograph film, "The Impalement," which they had advertised for last night. The theater was dark last night, due to the fact that the picture failed to arrive. The picture depicts a story, showing the awful results of a man's indifference toward a patient, dutiful wife. Earl Robertson will sing "When a Fellow Has a Sweetheart, Life's a Song."

"The Story of My Life" is the offering of the Vaudet theater tonight. It is the story of the mending of the bad habits of a willful boy. He displays his insolent nature and rude habits, while an old man attempts to advise him and he is suddenly changed into a large tree, while he is jeering the aged man. The tree is cut down, the wood made into a large doll and placed in a store for sale. The doll is purchased by a woman and taken home for her daughter. At night the doll takes on the actions of a human, much to the surprise of its owner. The following steps in the story and the manner in which the boy is brought to his right senses are very interesting. A new illustrated song is on the program.

The Palace theater will offer a big double bill tonight in the two films, "The Seminole Half Breeds" and "The Newly-Born." The first picture is a drama of much merit which is shown this afternoon and will be repeated tonight. "The Newly-Born" is a comedy, richly humorous, which will be shown as an extra picture tonight. Miss Iva Brown will sing a new song.

"That's nothing," he said. "There have been many instances of untrue confessions. A famous affair of the kind was the Boorn case in Vermont. Two brothers confessed having killed their brother-in-law and described how they destroyed the body, yet some time afterward the murdered man turned up alive and well. The object of the confession, of course, was to turn the verdict from murder to manslaughter, the circumstantial evidence against them having been so strong. In the days of witchcraft the unfortunate women accused of being witches were often urged by relatives to confess as being the only way of escape open to them. Ann Foster, at Salem, in 1692, confessed that she was a witch. She said the devil appeared to her in the shape of a bird, and that she attended a meeting of witches at Salem village. She was not insane, but the horror of the accusation brought against her had been too much for a weak mind. Howard's confession may possibly be due to some such influence."

"I hope for his poor father's sake," said Alicia, "that you may be right and that he may be proved innocent, but everything is overwhelmingly against him. I think you are the only one in New York to express such a doubt."

"Don't forget his wife," remarked the judge, dryly.

"No," she replied. "I really feel sorry for the girl myself. Will you give her some money if I—"

The lawyer shook his head. "She won't take it. I tried it. She wants me to defend her husband—I tried to bribe her to go to some other lawyer, but it wouldn't work."

Don't Risk even a penny—until health returns. And I mean just exactly that.

I am the one physician who says to the sick, "I will, out of my own pocket, pay for your medicine if it fails to bring you help."

And for 20 years Dr. Shoop's medicines have been used and recommended in every city and hamlet in America. They are positively standard in every community—and everywhere.

Then why pay the cash, and at your risk, for other unwarranted and uncertain medicines? Thousands upon thousands have in the past successfully used Dr. Shoop's Restorative.

When the stomach is out of order, or the heart nerves fail, or the kidneys are deranged, or the blood is impure, or the system is generally out of order, Dr. Shoop's Restorative will bring them back to health again. But best of all, they positively take no money risk whatever.

They know that when health fails to return Dr. Shoop will himself gladly pay the druggist for that test. And for that test a full 30 day treatment is freely granted.

But write me first for an order. This will save delay and disappointment. All druggists sell Dr. Shoop's Restorative and Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy, but authorized to give the 30 day test. So please—for I have appointed an honest and responsible druggist in almost every community, everywhere, to issue my "no help, no pay," medicines to the sick.

Tell me also which book you need. The books below will surely open up new and helpful ideas to those who are perfecting themselves just as you would your own. My advice below are yours—and without cost.

"Well, something ought to be done to stop her annoying us!" exclaimed Alicia, indignantly. "Mr. Jeffries suffers terribly. I can hear him pacing up and down the library till three or four in the morning. Poor man, he suffers so keenly and he won't let any one sympathize with him. He won't let me mention his son's name. I feel we ought to do something. Try and persuade him to let me see this girl and—you are his friend as well as his legal adviser."

Judge Brewster bowed. "Your husband is a very old friend, Mrs. Jeffries. I can't disregard his wishes entirely."

There was a knock at the door of the private office.

"Come in," called the judge. The door opened and the head clerk entered, ushering in Howard Jeffries, Sr. The banker, still aristocratic and dignified, but looking tired and careworn, advanced into the room and shook hands with the judge, who greeted him with a cordial smile. There was no response on the banker's face. Querulously he demanded:

"Brewster, what's that woman doing out there again? It's not the first time I've met her in this office."

Alicia looked up eagerly. "Is she out there now?" she cried.

"What right has she to come here? What's her object?" went on the banker irritably.

The lawyer shrugged his shoulders. "The same old thing," he replied. "She wants me to take her case."

The banker frowned. "Didn't you tell her it was impossible?"

"That makes no difference," laughed the judge. "She comes just the same. I've sent her away a dozen times. What am I to do if she insists on coming? We can't have her arrested. She doesn't break the furniture or beat the office boy. She simply sits and waits."

"Have you told her that I object to her coming here?" demanded the banker, haughtily.

"I have," replied the judge, calmly. "But she has overruled your objection." With a covert smile he added, "You know we can't use force."

Mr. Jeffries shrugged his shoulders impatiently. "You can certainly use moral force," he said.

"What do you mean by moral force?" demanded the lawyer.

Mr. Jeffries threw up his hands as if utterly disgusted with the whole business. Almost angrily he answered:

"Moral force is moral force. I mean persuasion, of course. Good God, why can't people understand these things as I do?"

The judge said nothing, but turned to examine some papers on his desk. He hardly liked the inference that he could not see things as plainly as other people, but what was the use of getting irritated? He couldn't afford to quarrel with one of his best clients.

Alicia looked at her husband anxiously. Laying her hand on his arm, she said soothingly:

"Perhaps if I were to see her—"

Mr. Jeffries turned angrily. "How can you think of such a thing? I can't permit my wife to come in contact with a woman of that character."

Judge Brewster, who was listening in spite of the fact that he was seemingly engrossed in his papers, pursed his lips.

"Oh, come," he said with a forced laugh, "she's not as bad as all that!"

"I'm sure she isn't," said Alicia, emphatically. "She must be amenable to reason."

The banker's wife was not altogether bad. Excessive vanity and ambition had steeled her heart and stifled impulses that were naturally good, but otherwise she was not wholly devoid of feeling. She was really sorry for this poor little woman who was fighting so bravely to save her husband. No doubt she had inveigled Howard into marrying her, but she—Alicia—had no right to sit in judgment on her for that. If the girl had been ambitious to marry above her, in what way was she more guilty than she herself had been in marrying a man she did not love, simply for his wealth and social position? Besides, Alicia was herself sorely troubled. Her conscience told her that a word from her might set the whole matter right. She might be able to prove that Underwood committed suicide. She knew she was a coward and worse than a coward because she dare not speak that word. The more she saw her husband's anger the less courage she had to do it. In any case, she argued to herself, Howard had confessed. If he shot Underwood there was no suicide, so why should she incriminate herself needlessly? But there was no reason why she should not show some sympathy for the poor girl who, after all, was only doing what any good wife should do. Aloud she repeated: "I'll see the girl and talk to her. She must listen to reason."

"Reason!" exploded the banker, angrily. "How can you expect reason from a woman who hounds us, dogs our footsteps, tries to compel us to—take her up?"

Judge Brewster, who had apparently paid no attention to the banker's remarks, now turned around. Heatingly he said:

"I think you do her an injustice, Jeffries. She comes every day in the hope that your feelings toward your son have changed. She wishes to give color to the belief that his father's lawyers are championing his cause. She was honest enough to tell me so. You know her movements are closely watched by the newspapers and she takes good care to let the reporters think that she comes here to discuss with me the details of her husband's defense."

The banker shifted impatiently on his chair. Contemptuously he said:

"The newspapers which I read don't give her the slightest attention. If they did I should refuse to read them." With growing irritation he went on:

"It's no use talking about her any more. What are we going to do about this latest scandal? This woman is going on the stage to be exhibited all over the country and she proposes to use the family name."

"There is nothing to prevent her," said the lawyer, dryly.

The banker jumped to his feet and exclaimed angrily:

"There must be! Good God, Brewster, surely you can obtain an injunction restraining her from using the family name! You must do something. What do you advise?"

"I advise patience," replied the judge, calmly.

But Mr. Jeffries had no patience. He was a man who was not accustomed to have his wishes thwarted. He did not understand why there should be the slightest difficulty in carrying out his instructions.

"Any one can advise patience!" he exclaimed, hotly, "but that's not doing anything." Banging the desk angrily with his fist, he exclaimed: "I want something done!"

Judge Brewster looked up at his client with surprise. The judge never lost his temper. Even in the most acrimonious wrangles in the courtroom he was always the suave, polished gentleman. There was a shade of reproach in his tone as he replied:

"Come, come, don't lose your temper! I'll do what I can, but there is nothing to be done in the way you suggest. The most I can do is to remain loyal to you, although—to be quite candid—I confess it goes against the grain to keep my hands off this case. As I told your wife, there are certain features about it which interest me keenly. I feel that you are wrong to—"

"No, Brewster!" interrupted Mr. Jeffries, explosively. "I'm right! I'm right! You know it, but you admit it."

The lawyer shrugged his shoulders and turned to his desk again. Laconically, he said:

"Well, I won't argue the matter with you. You refuse to be advised by me and—"

The banker looked up impatiently. "What is your advice?"

The lawyer, without looking up from his papers, said quietly:

"You know what my feelings in the matter are."

"And you know what mine are!" exclaimed the banker, hotly. "I refuse to be engulfed in this wave of hysterical sympathy with criminals. I will not be stamped with the same hall mark as the man who takes the life of his fellow being—though the man be my own son. I will not set the seal of approval on crime by defending it."

The lawyer bowed and said calmly: "Then, sir, you must expect exactly what is happening. This girl, whatever she may be, is devoted to your son. She is his wife. She'll go to any extreme to help him—even to selling her name for money to pay for his defense."

The banker threw up his hands with impatience. "It's a matter of principle with me. Her devotion is not the question." With a mocking laugh he went on: "Sentimentality doesn't appeal to me.

The demand for this well-known herb for this purpose has been so great that one manufacturer has taken advantage of the fact, and has placed on the market an ideal "sage tea," containing sulphur, a valuable remedy for dandruff and scalp rashes and irritations.

This preparation, which is called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, is sold by all leading druggists for 50 cents and $1 a bottle, or will be sent direct by the Wyeth Chemical Company, 74 Cortlandt St., New York City, upon receipt of price.

The lawyer shrugged his shoulders and turned to his desk again. Laconically, he said:

"Well, I won't argue the matter with you. You refuse to be advised by me and—"

The banker looked up impatiently. "What is your advice?"

The lawyer, without looking up from his papers, said quietly:

"You know what my feelings in the matter are."

"And you know what mine are!" exclaimed the banker, hotly. "I refuse to be engulfed in this wave of hysterical sympathy with criminals. I will not be stamped with the same hall mark as the man who takes the life of his fellow being—though the man be my own son. I will not set the seal of approval on crime by defending it."

The lawyer bowed and said calmly: "Then, sir, you must expect exactly what is happening. This girl, whatever she may be, is devoted to your son. She is his wife. She'll go to any extreme to help him—even to selling her name for money to pay for his defense."

The banker threw up his hands with impatience. "It's a matter of principle with me. Her devotion is not the question." With a mocking laugh he went on: "Sentimentality doesn't appeal to me.

What Our Neighbors Are Talking About

AS USUAL.

(Greensburg News.)

A man giving his name as Wilson, and claiming to be a resident of Indianapolis, was ordered out of town this morning by City Marshal Johnston, for the fellow was attempting to pull off a clever swindle.

He was peddling a variety of linens which he was trying to sell to local housewives at thirty-five cents a yard. The quality was such that any merchant in Greensburg handling dry goods could duplicate the stuff for ten cents a yard and then make about 200 per cent profit. Chief Johnston got the man early in his game and told him which road led out of the city. It is not believed that he succeeded in selling to anyone at least there has been no such report reached headquarters.

Fights Infant Blindness

Not daunted by its failure to get the bill through the last Legislature, the State Board of Health, according to Dr. J. N. Hurty, secretary, will make a strenuous effort to induce the next Legislature to pass an act requiring physicians to take certain precautions to prevent blindness among infants. The board has at its offices in the State House a series of about forty chart exhibits, dealing with various phases of this question. These were sent to Indianapolis by the committee on the prevention of blindness in New York city and will be ready for physicians and citizens to examine tomorrow. The exhibit will remain here about a week.
